

Baudin's Cockatoo grubbing for insect larvae (top) and feeding on Bull Banksia nectar (bottom).

Forest Red-tailed Black Cockatoo male (left) at a breeding hollow and a female (right) feeding on Marri seeds.

Carnaby's Cockatoo drinking from a puddle.

Endangered Black Cockatoos in Western Australia

Copying for educational purposes is encouraged, please acknowledge the source.

© R. Fleming 2011

This informative image created by Western Australian Museum, Urban Bushland Council and Cockatoo care can be used in multiple ways.

- 1) Colour in and put up on the wall as an informative and attractive piece of artwork!
- 2) Print onto 200gsm white cardstock, then colour in and cut into random shapes to create a puzzle. Remember to have a container ready to put all the pieces in once you have made it!
- 3) Enlarge onto an A3 piece of paper, colour in and use as a poster in

Image © R.Fleming 2011